French authorities set the tenta-tive death toll in the week-end massacres, riots and disorders at a minimum of 834. They said 584 were known dead in Algeria, 249 in Morocco and 1 in Tunisia.

The destroyed villages were evacuated of all women and children before the French blasted them to bits with shells and applied the torch.

France also announced an emer gency airlift of troop reinforcements to help control the uprising in the French North African em pire which has become one of the most violent and bloody in French
